And take my leaue to poſte with ſpeede to France.

exit Somerſet.

King Come vnckle Gloſter, now lets haue our horſe,
For we will to Saint Albones preſently,
Madame, your hawke, they ſay, is ſwift of flight,
And we will trie, how ſhe will flie to day. exeunt omnes.

Enter Elnor, with ſir Iohn Hum, Roger Bullenbrooke a Coniurer, and Margery Iourdaine a Witch.

Elnor. Here ſir Iohn, take this ſcrole of paper here,
Wherein is writ the queſtions you ſhall aske,
And I will ſtand vpon this Tower here,
And heare the ſpirit what it ſaies to you,
And to my queſtions, write the anſweres downe.

She goes vp to the Tower.

ſir Iohn. Now ſirs begin and caſt your ſpels about,
And charme the fiends for to obey your wills,
And tell Dame Elnor of the thing ſhe askes.

Witch. Then Roger Bullinbrooke, about thy taske,
And frame a circle here vpon the earth,
Whilſt I thereon all proſtrate on my face,
Do talke and whiſper with the diuells below,
And coniure them for to obey my will.

She lies downe vpon her face.

Bullenbrooke makes a circle.

Bullen Darke night, dread night, the ſilence of the night,
Wherein the Furies maske in helliſh troupes,
Send vp I charge you from Soſetus lake,
The ſpirit Askalon to come to me,
To pierce the bowells of this centricke earth,
And hither come in twinckling of an eie,
Askalon, Ascenda, Ascenda.

It thunders and lightens, and then the ſpirit riſeth vp.

ſpirit. Now Bullenbrooke, what wouldſt thou haue me do?

Bullen. Firſt, of the King, what ſhall become of him?
